Energy Management Program in its Third Year

This summer we will welcome our third cohort of energy management students! With over 70 fall applications, and more to come in the spring, the competition for 50 slots is strong.

The Energy Management Program elevates McCombs’ reputation in energy studies and leverages the University’s expertise across the Jackson, Cockrell, LBJ and Law schools. We actively engage industry in continued partnership to ensure program success and relevance, as well as to provide job opportunities.

In addition to coursework in geoscience, petroleum operations, oil and gas law, real estate/contracts law, and energy technology and policy, the students participate in many extracurricular activities. 2014 activities included:

- Field trip to Cuero to see BHP Billiton Eagle Ford production facility and wellsite
- Etiquette luncheon
- Resume and Cover Letter instruction
- Mock Interviews
- Industry guest speakers from Anadarko, Chevron, ConocoPhillips, law firms and McCombs’ PLM alumni
- Workshop with Drilling Info
- Field trip to a Courthouse to run title

Comments from Students:

- Meeting and spending quality time with industry professionals has provided opportunities that stretch beyond the classroom.
- EMP is a great thing to do if you’re looking to work in the petroleum industry. I feel like I will be a much more well-rounded petroleum geologist because of the education I received from the program.
- EMP has been a great experience for me and really gave me an advantage during the recruiting process.
- The professors are all awesome and have taught me so much.
- I enjoyed meeting industry members who were able to provide me with personal insight into corporate communities and professional perks/challenges.
