"Blackboard" and the Discussion Board

We will use the web-based University of Texas at Austin "Blackboard" (Bb) software extensively, including its discussion board. To access Blackboard, go to <http://courses.utexas.edu> or follow the links from University websites.

*The discussion board benefits all of us. You can use it to post questions, comments and responses to others' posts. If you have a question or comment of general interest (i.e., not a personal matter), please use the discussion board, not e-mail.

I will also use Bb to post announcements and course materials. Please check Bb frequently and before every class.

Enhancing the Enjoyment of this Course

I prefer an informal classroom, as I have found such an environment to be more enjoyable and conducive to student attendance and participation. I very much hope you will let me know during class if you have a question, comment or response. In this class, silence is not golden!

Please assist me in maintaining a positive, productive learning environment by showing courtesy and respect for your fellow students (and me). To that end, please make all reasonable efforts to be on time to class. Also, please respond to your fellow students' remarks (in class and on Bb) in a courteous and respectful manner, as you would in a professional setting.

In my experience as an instructor and student, use of electronic devices by students is disruptive. Accordingly, please turn your cell phone, laptop, Blackberry, iPhone and other devices off before class begins.

Finally, I hope you will give me feedback during the course. You will, of course, have a formal opportunity to do so via the end-of-semester Course Instructor Survey, but I hope you will stop by and see me during the semester if there are things you especially like or do not like about the course.

Required Course Materials

Course files. I will provide any supplemental, non-textbook course materials that we will use in the course, including any PowerPoint slides, homework suggestions and solutions, and cases. These files will be available on Blackboard. These materials do not substitute for class itself, so it is important to attend each class session.

Advanced Accounting, 2nd ed., by Hamlen, Huefner and Largay (Cambridge Business Publishers, 2013).

Course Objectives

At the end of the semester, you will have a better understanding of the following:

1. Types of corporate acquisitions and investments and their importance.
2. How such transactions and interests are reported in the financial statements and special accounting issues that arise from acquisitions.
3. Methods and procedures for preparing consolidated financial statements, with both wholly owned and less than wholly owned subsidiaries.
4. Accounting for transfers of inventory, other assets and services among consolidated entities.
5. The SEC and financial reporting issues.
6. Transactions involving foreign currency and related derivatives and hedging.
7. Financial reporting for multinational companies.
8. Issues facing distressed and bankrupt companies.
9. Accounting for partnership formation, operation, and membership changes.

Grading

Course grades will be based on a 350-point scale, as follows:

	Points Possible
Midterm examination	125 (36%)
Final examination	125 (36%)
Cases (2)	80 (23%)
Participation	20 (5%)
Total possible points	350

I do not have any fixed point or percentage cut-offs in mind regarding letter grades. I will make these determinations at the end of the course based on both absolute and relative performance considerations. Historically, my grade distribution in this course has been approximately 40-45% A/A-, 40-50% B+/B and the remainder B- and below. However, the final grade distribution this term may vary from the foregoing historical distribution.

As students are naturally curious about where they stand during the semester, I will endeavor to give the class an interim assessment of performance following the midterm exam.

However, any mid-semester indications of course performance are merely to assist you in evaluating your performance to date and achieving your goals in this course. They are not guarantees or suggestions that you will receive any particular final grade in this course.

Each graded component is described below:

Examinations (midterm and final exams worth 125 points each)

Examinations will emphasize concepts and issues discussed in class and covered in recommended homework exercises, although any material from assigned readings is "fair game" for an examination. I will provide additional exam-related information approximately one week prior to each exam.

The final examination will emphasize material covered after the midterm, but may also be partially "cumulative" in that it may test certain subjects from earlier in the semester. I will identify relevant chapters and concepts to study prior to the final exam. Of course, as the material in this course builds on previous concepts, the final examination will be "cumulative" in the broad sense of that term.

Cases (two with 80 total points available)

To refine your writing skills and your ability to deal with more realistic and less structured problems in advanced accounting, there will be two graded case exercises based on real-world examples that have been adapted for teaching purposes. Cases will be posted on Bb under "Assignments" one week or more before their respective due dates. I anticipate that each case will be allocated a maximum of 40 points, but will advise you if I decide to adjust the allocation.

Cases will be graded for breadth and depth of analysis, quality of writing and professional impression. Certain questions will involve subjective issues for which there may be no "right answer" and multiple views can be defended. It is important to be both complete and concise in your case analyses. Do not repeat or summarize the case facts, except where needed to support a position. Your case analyses will be limited to four pages each and must be double-spaced, use a font no smaller than 10 and have left and right margins of at least 1".

In the formative stage of a case assignment, you are welcome to discuss the case with other members of this class, including on the Bb discussion board. However, you may not discuss cases with persons who are not in this class. Moreover, copying from another student's prepared solution is scholastic dishonesty, and will be penalized severely. See "Policy on Scholastic Dishonesty" later in this syllabus for clarification. Students should not use this policy to jointly prepare cases, but rather use it to clarify case issues before preparing your solutions independently.

We will discuss cases in class, usually on the due date. Discussion of cases is an important part of the course, so please be prepared to discuss and defend your positions in class (see "Participation," below).

Participation (20 points)

Your active participation will make this course substantially more enjoyable (for you and me) and significantly enhance the clarity of points discussed in class. Moreover, the ability to provide meaningful input in a professional setting is a critical element of career success. Thus, to give you an incentive to attend and participate, 20 points will be based on your cumulative participation in this class.

To earn up to 20 points for participation:

- Ask and answer questions and offer insights in class.
- Post questions and insights to the discussion board.
- Answer others' posts in the discussion board.
- Help promote an enjoyable and productive classroom and course.

Some of you will participate more effectively in class, and others will participate more effectively on the discussion board. Both kinds of participation are helpful, although I weight classroom participation more heavily. To earn all of the participation points available, meaningful classroom participation is necessary. In reviewing student performance from past semesters, I observed a strong positive correlation between students' final grades and their participation scores.

I do not "micromanage" participation or expect that you will contribute in every class. Your levels of interest and preparation will frequently dictate your participation in a given class. Assessing participation at the conclusion of the course requires my subjective judgment, but you can trust me to do my best to form a fair assessment over the semester of your participation in the course.

If you have a concern about this (or any other) aspect of your grade, please come by during office hours or make other arrangements to see me. I will be happy to provide suggestions on how you might improve your performance in the course.

Homework

Each chapter in the text is followed by problems. Some of these problems reinforce concepts discussed in class, while others address matters not discussed in class. A list of recommended homework problems will be posted on Bb under “Course Documents.” Solutions will be posted as we cover related material in class.

Homework is voluntary and will not be collected. Hence, homework does not technically count as part of your course grade. However, in my experience with this and similar courses, it is very important to complete the homework as we cover the related material in class. In other words, do the suggested homework and don't fall behind. In addition, I will consider the assigned homework problems when I prepare each examination, i.e., some exam questions may be similar to homework problems. I expect that students who put diligent effort into the homework will do better on the examinations.

Discussion Board

Along with other features of Blackboard, I strongly encourage you to take advantage of the discussion board for this course. Postings can relate to class discussions, case issues, exam-related matters, careers, current events or any other topics/issues that are relevant to this course. I monitor the discussion board on a regular basis, and will reward participation as noted above.

Ground rules for discussion board:

1. For questions or comments of general interest to the class, please use the discussion board, not e-mail! I do not consider e-mails in determining participation grades. More importantly, your classmates will not receive the benefit of your questions or insights and any responses thereto.
2. Be professional and courteous. Discussion boards of this type are used throughout the business world. You do not need to be overly formal, but forums such as this offer a good opportunity to practice professional business communication.
3. Do not be a free rider. If you benefit from reading other's postings, consider adding your own insights. Also reply to inquiries from your fellow students. Student replies are usually very helpful and often are posted before I have a chance to respond (particularly if they are made late in the evening).
5. Even if you have nothing to post, please get in the habit of accessing the discussion board before each class session. I will often use Blackboard to communicate important announcements and clarifications.
6. From time to time I will establish special forums within the discussion board for exams, cases and other matters. To maximize the usefulness of your posting, please try to use the most appropriate forum. For example, questions about homework problems in the days leading up to the midterm exam should be posted in the midterm exam forum.

Blackboard downtimes and course requirements:

As with all computer systems, there are occasional scheduled downtimes and unanticipated interruptions of the Bb system. Notification of these disruptions will be posted on the Bb login page. Scheduled downtimes are not an excuse for turning in a case late or failing to timely complete other course requirements. However, if there is an unscheduled downtime for a significant period of time, I will make an adjustment if it occurs close to the due date. As downtimes are often unpredictable, I advise you to print out cases and any related instructions as soon as they are available.

Policy on Missed Examinations and Assignments

In general, medical emergencies, family emergencies and university-sponsored conflicts are the only valid reasons for missing an examination or the due date of a case. In all such instances, I require some form of supporting documentation, such as a signed note from a physician. At that point I will decide the best make-up alternative on a case-by-case basis, which could mean a make-up exam or recalculating the semester grade to omit the missed component, depending on the circumstances. In the case of a conflict due to a university-sponsored event, you must notify me as soon as you are aware of the conflict and before the examination date or assignment due date. An interview or office visit is not a valid reason to miss an examination or an assignment due date.

Religious Holidays

Religious holy days sometime conflict with class and examination schedules. If you miss an examination or case due to the observance of a religious holy day, then you will be given an opportunity to complete the work missed within a reasonable time after the absence. It is the policy of the University that you must notify me at least fourteen (14) days prior to the classes scheduled on the dates you will be absent to observe a religious holiday.

Policy on Students with Disabilities

The University strives to accommodate qualified students with disabilities. For more information, contact the Office of the Dean of Students at 471-6259, 471-4641 TTY. If you are a qualified student with a disability, please see me to discuss any appropriate accommodations that have been recommended for this course and I will do my best to help.

Assistance with Case Writing

If you are an undergraduate student, I encourage you to use the Undergraduate Writing Center (UWC), FAC 211, 471-6222 (<http://uwc.fac.utexas.edu>) to assist you with writing your case analyses. Graduate students may use the Graduate Student Writing Center (GSWC), JES A332A, 471-3614 (http://www.utexas.edu/student/utlc/tutoring/grad_writing_services.php). Each center offers free, individualized, expert help with writing, by appointment or on a drop-in basis. Both centers work with students on both academic and non-academic writing and their services are not just for writing with “problems.” Getting feedback from an informed audience is a normal part of a successful writing project. Consultants help students develop strategies to improve their writing. Further, the assistance they provide is intended to foster independence - each student determines how to use the consultant's advice and the consultants are trained to help you in ways that preserve the integrity of your work.

University Electronic Mail Notification Policy

All students should become familiar with the University's official e-mail student notification policy. It is the student's responsibility to keep the University informed as to changes in his or her e-mail address. Students are expected to check e-mail on a frequent and regular basis in order to stay current with University-related communications, recognizing that certain communications may be time-critical. It is recommended that e-mail be checked daily, but at a minimum, twice per week. The complete text of this policy and instructions for updating your email address are available at: <http://www.utexas.edu/its/policies/emailnotify.html>.

Electronic Class Roster and Student Privacy

The University has requested that students be notified of their privacy rights in regard to electronic class rosters:

Password-protected class sites will be available for all accredited courses taught at the University. Syllabi, handouts, assignments and other resources are types of information that may be available within these sites. Site activities could include exchanging e-mail, engaging in class discussions and chats, and exchanging files. In addition, class e-mail rosters will be a component of the sites. Students who do not want their names included in these electronic class rosters must restrict their directory information in the Office of the Registrar, Main Building, Room 1. For information on restricting directory information see: <http://www.utexas.edu/student/registrar/catalogs/gi06-07/app/appc09.html>.

Policy on Scholastic Dishonesty and Working Together on Course Assignments

Policy of the Department of Accounting

The Department of Accounting has a Policy Statement on Scholastic Dishonesty in the MPA Program, which is similar in content and objective to the UT MBA Honor Code. It is available on the web via the Department website:

The Department of Accounting has no tolerance for acts of scholastic dishonesty. The responsibilities of both students and faculty with regard to scholastic dishonesty are described in detail in the department's Policy Statement on Scholastic Dishonesty in the MPA Program. By teaching this course, I have agreed to observe all of the faculty responsibilities described in that document. If the application of that Policy Statement to this class and its assignments is unclear in any way, it is your responsibility to ask me for clarification.

Integrity is a public good from which we all benefit and a trait of successful businessmen and women. I intend to conduct this course in an environment of trust and cooperation. I can only achieve this, however, if you maintain an atmosphere of absolute ethical integrity in this course.

Personal Policy on Working Together (applies only to this course)

*For this class, you may discuss issues related to assigned cases with other students in this class. You may work in the formative stages of an assignment to clarify issues or exchange ideas. However, I expect the final product of each collected assignment to reflect individual composition. You may not copy or paraphrase from others' solutions. Examples intended to clarify this policy follow. When in doubt, ask me!

Examples of acceptable collaborative efforts (applies only to this course):

- A student is confused about an ambiguous aspect of a case, and asks another student what s/he thinks.
- Students ask questions and share helpful insights in class or on the discussion board.

Examples of collaborative efforts that are unacceptable:

- Student A completes a case before student B. B asks A for A's solution. B bases his/her solution on A's solution, changing a few words here and there to make it look original. Both A and B are guilty of scholastic dishonesty.
- A student finds a source relevant to a case and copies extensively from it, without using quotation marks, indentation or other references to acknowledge the source. This example constitutes plagiarism, which is a clear case of scholastic dishonesty.
- A student completes a case on the computer, and provides a USB storage device containing the solution file to another student. This constitutes impermissible collaboration, and is clearly scholastic dishonesty.
- Any collaboration, breach of security or other cheating on a course examination.

Anticipated Course Schedule

Assigned chapters are from the course text (see “Required Course Materials” above). Various other course files and readings will supplement this text and may be added from time to time.

IMPORTANT: Please complete each day's assigned reading before class. The readings provide background that is necessary for understanding classroom discussion.
