

Taylor Sisson
Managing Partner and Americas Private Assurance Leader
Ernst & Young LLC

Taylor serves as the Managing Partner of the Austin office, leading 600+ professionals in the greater Austin area. He has more than 24 years of experience serving SEC registrants, private-equity investees, and VC funded private companies in the technology (software and hardware), retail, consumer products, and real estate. He's assisted numerous clients with the successful completion of numerous initial public offerings (IPOs), SPAC filings, secondary offerings, debt private placements, acquisitions, and carve-outs. He's also assisted companies working through complex accounting issues.

Taylor also serves as the EY Americas Private Assurance Leader, focused on working with private, high growth companies and helping drive efficiencies in EY private company services and challenging teams to embrace/adopt new audit technologies.

In addition to serving clients, Taylor has also served as the Director for the Central Texas EY Entrepreneur of the Year program, which annually recognizes high-impact entrepreneurs whose successes are deserving of celebration. Taylor also teaches extensively for EY and helps lead the recruiting efforts for Austin and the University of Texas at Austin.

Taylor has served notable Austin clients such as National Instruments, American Campus Communities., Silicon Laboratories Inc., Whole Foods Market, Open Lending, E2Open, Torchy's, WP Engine, Tecovas, Inc., and Cirrus Logic, among others.

He is also very active in the Austin community, including serving on the board for the United Way of Texas, Boys and Girls Club of the Austin area, and Breakthrough Austin.

Taylor earned a Masters in Accounting from The University of Texas at Austin.
