September 19
Steve Lilley - PwC
Steve is a Deals Partner at PwC with 20 plus years of experience. Steve specializes in capital markets and accounting advisory services (CMAAS), including capital raising, distressed accounting (including bankruptcy), and divestitures. Steve has worked throughout the world during his career, spending eight years in Europe advising non US companies looking to enter the US Capital Markets or divesting portions of their business.

For the past 12 years, Steve has concentrated his efforts on ensuring his clients have market friendly and regulatory compliant financial information for their pending transactions. These transactions have ranged from debt and equity offerings, to divestitures, to assisting companies through reorganizations under Chapter 11 of the US Bankruptcy Code.

September 26
Kyle McClure - Frank’s International
Mr. McClure is the Company’s senior vice president and chief financial officer, a position he has held since June 2017. He previously served as the Company’s Senior Vice President of Finance and Treasurer since March 2015, with responsibility for global treasury, insurance, investor relations and financial planning and analysis. In August 2016, he assumed additional responsibilities for finance leadership of the Western Hemisphere business. In March 2017, he was appointed as the interim Chief Financial Officer in addition to his other duties.

Prior to joining Frank’s International, Mr. McClure served as treasurer for Ascend Performance Materials, a specialty chemicals company, from January 2013 to March 2015, where he was responsible for capital funding, cash and liquidity management, insurance, credit and treasury operations and controls. Mr. McClure’s previous experience also includes serving as director of treasury and investor relations for Cooper Industries, an electrical products manufacturer, from December 2008 until its acquisition by Eaton Corp in December 2012. He also served in multiple financial roles of increasing leadership at Dell over a ten-year period, including treasury, corporate planning, operations, and sales finance support. In addition, he worked in public accounting for Arthur Andersen. Mr. McClure holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics from The University of Texas at Austin and a Master of Business Administration from Baylor University.
October 3

Manal Corwin - KPMG

Manal Corwin is KPMG LLP’s national service line leader for International Tax as well as principal in charge—International Tax Policy for KPMG’s Washington National Tax practice. She rejoined KPMG in April 2013, following completion of her tenure as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Tax Policy for International Affairs in the U.S. Treasury Department.

Manal advises multinational corporations on U.S. international tax aspects of their structures, operations and transactions. She specializes in consulting and advising on issues relating to international tax policy, expense allocation, source of income rules, foreign tax credits, subpart F, U.S. taxation of international transportation income, and certain special tax benefit provisions. In addition, Manal leads KPMG International’s Global BEPS Network and advises clients on developments and implications of BEPS measures.

Prior to joining the Treasury Department (first as International Tax Counsel in the Office of Tax Policy and then as Deputy Assistant Secretary for International Tax Affairs), Manal was a principal in KPMG’s Washington National Tax practice 2001 to 2009, where she advised multinational corporations on U.S. international tax aspects of their operations and transactions and represented clients in tax controversies before the IRS.

October 10

Maya McReynolds - Dell

Maya McReynolds serves as Senior Vice President and Chief Accounting Officer for Dell Technologies Inc. headquartered in Round Rock, Texas where she is responsible for managing the global accounting and financial system organization.

Maya has been with Dell since 1998 in various finance and accounting roles. She previously served as Vice President in Finance, managing a variety of regional and global technical accounting teams. Most recently, she has managed all the accounting, reporting and related integration activities surrounding the acquisition of EMC, multiple divestiture and other corporate structuring transactions as well as the privatization of Dell in 2013. In conjunction with her current responsibilities, Maya currently serves as an executive steering member of the Dell Technologies Business Architecture Team that drives strategic transformation around global business processes with technology as a key enabler and differentiator. Maya has also managed teams in Global Audit, Dell’s Consumer and Small Business Marketing Finance and Corporate Development groups.

Maya graduated from Tulane University with a bachelor’s degree in management, concentrating in finance and accounting. Prior to Dell, she worked for The Minute Maid Company and KPMG. She currently holds a CPA designation with the state of Texas. Maya resides in Austin, Texas with her husband, Morgan, and their four children.
October 24

Larry R Katzen - Author “And You Thought Accountants Were Boring”

Larry Katzen is an entrepreneur, a businessman, and an author. After graduating from Drake University in 1967, he started working at Arthur Andersen. He quickly rose through the ranks to eventually become the Great Plains’ Regional Managing Partner. He stayed with the firm for 35 years, serving clients on five continents (North America, Australia, Europe, Asia, and Africa) until the firm's demise in 2002.

Since leaving Andersen, Larry has served as a member of the board of directors for three public companies and three privately held companies. Larry has also worked with a script writer to produce a movie script based on the book and additional research called “85,000.”

November 14

Steve Kimble - Deloitte

Steve is the chairman and chief executive officer of Deloitte Tax LLP (Deloitte Tax) with leadership responsibility for more than 10,000 professionals across the United States and India. His responsibilities also extend to Deloitte’s US operations as a member of the US Executive Committee. In addition, he continues to serve as an active advisory partner for several of Deloitte’s largest, multi-national clients.

November 28

Kim Voss - American Campus Communities

Kim is responsible for all aspects of the company’s accounting and financial reporting functions – including SEC reporting, technical accounting, internal controls, and financial systems implementation. She started her career as an auditor with Arthur Andersen LLP in San Francisco, where her client base consisted primarily of REITs and other real estate entities. Prior to joining ACC, Kim was an assistant controller with AMB Property Corporation (now Prologis), also in San Francisco. In 2004, Kim met with our CEO Bill Bayless and the executive team about the opportunity to lead ACC’s accounting department through our IPO and transition to a publicly traded company.

She was hooked on the team’s enthusiasm and passion right away. Eleven years later, she is still just as excited about her job, serving our students and university partners, and mentoring her team members to learn and grow every single day. Kim is a CPA and a member of the University of Texas Department of Accounting Advisory Council. She also enjoys participating in charitable activities as a member of the Junior League of Austin.
Gary Bischoping - Varian Medical Systems

Gary Bischoping, Jr. was named Chief Financial Officer of Varian Medical Systems in 2017. His management responsibilities include corporate accounting, investor relations, internal audit, risk management, tax and treasury, and corporate information systems.

Prior to joining Varian, Mr. Bischoping was with Dell Technologies for 17 years where he held several management roles, including CFO of its Client Solutions Group where he led an organization of 200 finance professionals in over 30 countries supporting a business of over $35B in revenue. Before joining Dell, he worked in financial management consulting for Stern Stewart & Company, Xerox and the SK Group.

Mr. Bischoping earned his MBA at the Simon School of Business at the University of Rochester and a BS in Accounting from the State University of New York at Oswego. He passed the Certified Public Accountants examination in 1991.