How we can guide you
MSF student advising structures are personalized and tailored to the student's career goals and development needs. Our career advisors provide one-on-one advising, group workshops, and industry networking opportunities, focusing on the student's specific career interests and goals.

Career Development Resources

Individual Advising
- The National Career Development and Personal Development Center offers one-on-one advising, group workshops, and networking opportunities for students interested in developing their professional skills and exploring career paths.
- Students can schedule appointments to discuss career goals, explore the job market, and receive feedback on their resume and cover letter.

On-campus Recruiting
- Corporate recruiters offer on-campus interviews and recruitment fairs to connect with students directly.
- Students can expect to receive information about upcoming recruitment events and opportunities for networking.

Career Development Bootcamp
- Students will attend a series of workshops and events throughout the academic year.
- Workshops will cover topics such as resume building, networking, and interview preparation.

Employers and MSF Career advisors work closely with students to identify opportunities, provide feedback, and prepare students for their first job. Students will have access to a comprehensive database of job opportunities and events with a wide range of industries and sectors.
